TERMINATION OF DISCUSSIONS WITH AGL IN RELATION TO UNSOLICITED PROPOSAL

Vocus Group Limited ("Vocus" or "the Company") (ASX:VOC) refers to its announcement on 11 June 2019 that it had received an unsolicited proposal from AGL Energy Limited ("AGL") to acquire all of the shares in Vocus at a price of A$4.85 per share in cash, to be implemented by way of a scheme of arrangement (the "Unsolicited Proposal").

The Company advised in communications to the market at that time that there was no certainty that the Unsolicited Proposal would result in a binding offer for Vocus, but that the Board of Vocus had decided to grant exclusive due diligence to AGL to enable AGL to potentially put forward a formal binding proposal.

AGL has this morning decided not to proceed with the transaction outlined in the Unsolicited Proposal and discussions with AGL in relation to the Unsolicited Proposal have now ceased.

The CEO of Vocus, Kevin Russell, commented "As we have repeatedly said, this is a three year turnaround. We have great confidence that our strategy and ability to execute our business plan will deliver significant value to our shareholders in the medium to long term. There is growing demand for our strategically valuable network assets and we have a substantial opportunity for Vocus Networks to gain market share. This is the core of our business. The Vocus management team will now be able to focus all of their attention on realising the opportunity that we have ahead of us."
